Ocean City experienced "significant" flooding on their roadways after Saturday's afternoon storms, according to the Ocean City Police Department.

The main trouble area, the department said, is Coastal Highway north of 94th Street.

"At this time the area is impassable and officers are working to close the roadway," the department said. "Please avoid driving in north Ocean City until the storm passes and the waters recede."

The roadway opened later in the evening.

The Delaware Department of Transportation also issued an advisory for Coastal Highway and Route 54 in Fenwick Island.

Route 54 heading into Ocean City was open as of 5:50 p.m.

Cars traveling south on Route 1 now can enter Ocean City and are no longer being turned around by officials.

Cars leaving Ocean City on Coastal Highway has both lanes open, according to live traffic cameras.

Drivers should avoid the area due to flooding, DeIDOT said on its website.
